

It was a brief visit to Emanuel today as we dropped nurse Jane the ROTOM field nurse. He lives alone and asked me to look at his latrine that is now full and he needs a new one.

I have met Emanuel many times. He has been a loyal volunteer and then a supported senior for many years and is so grateful for the support from his friends in Canada that have enabled him to get healthcare and a family with the staff and fellowship group that he has always loved.

He is so happy to have the huge water drum that collects the water in the rainy season (now) and he can use it for a long time. He is also so happy to have the solar light which means no need to buy kerosene that is expensive and smokey.

It was good to see him. I hope I will see him at fellowship soon. He has always been a gentle, quiet man and speaks English well.

In Gratitude
